The story of Father Belcourt is celebrated and shared thanks to The John Bragg Award for Atlantic Canada - a new granting program that promotes and preserves the histories of community leaders in the region. The Award is made possible thanks to the River Philip Foundation and administered by Canada's National History Society.

It is our hope that students and the public become more familiar with this important Canadian historical figure. In reading about Father Belcourt, it is hoped that the historical contextualization provided will provoke an understanding of the milieu and time in which he lived. It is also our hope that readers will be able to infer and interpret the concepts of continuity and change, the multiple causes and consequences of events and trends, and the role of individuals in shaping our history.
